MISCELLANEOUS.

A SUDDEN CONVERSION.

A STORY OF INTEREST.

In one of the northern towns of Vermont lived a young man, Daniel Bryan, a lawyer by profession. No one possessed the confidence of his friends more than he, and no one was better calculated to secure the good will and friendship with whom he came in contact. Business poured in upon him, and he failed not to give the utmost satisfaction.

At the age of twenty-seven Bryan took to himself a wife from amongst the most favored ones in the country. Mary Felton experienced a strange pride when she gave her hand to the young lawyer, and if none envied her many at least prayed that they might be equally fortunate.

But ere long a cloud came over the scenes. Conviviality ran high among the members of the bar, and Bryan possessed one of those temperaments which at length gave the whole body and soul to the demon. For three years he followed the social custom of the times without neglecting much of his business, but finally he sunk into the lowest of degradation; when at the age thirty-five, he became a confirmed drunkard. He now neglected his clients altogether—he could not remain sober long enough at any time to carry a case through court. The only business he had now on hand was the collecting of some debts.

On the evening of his thirty-fifth birthday, he joined the Washingtonians—once more his bright genius shone out upon the world. But it could not last amid the examples of those who were his constant companions, and he sank as rapidly as he had risen. In one short year from that time he was a miserable, degrading being.—People who had left notes and accounts with him to collect, called at his house, and on enquiry where he could be found, his wife would tell them that he was away. Poor woman! they could not bear to dispute with her, and would go their way, though they knew full well that the remains of Daniel Bryan were prostrate upon his bed-room floor.

One day Mr. Vinson went to see him Mr. V. left accounts to the amount of several thousand dollars with Mr. Bryan, and he was anxious to see him. His poor wife answered him as usual—that he was away. 'My dear madam,' returned Mr. Vinson. 'I know your misfortunes, and appreciate your feelings; but I must see your husband. If I can but see him for one minute, I can learn all I wish to know.'

Mary Bryan spoke not a word, but with tearful eyes turned away, and Mr. Vinson followed her. He found Bryan in a back room stretched at full length upon the floor with a jug of Medford rum at his side. With much effort Vinson aroused the poor inebriate to a semi-consciousness, and asked him if he had done anything with the notes and accounts he had left to him. 'Yes,' answered the lawyer, in a weak, hiccuping voice, 'I've deducted my per centage, and you'll find the rest in that trunk. Mary's got the key.'

Mrs. Bryan was called in, the key produced, and Vinson found his money—four thousand and some hundred dollars—all right and safe.

In his worst moments Bryan never used for himself a single penny held in trust.—Hundreds there were who worked hard to reclaim the wanderer, but without effect. Years went by, and he sank lower—yet his wife left him not. Her brother, a young lawyer named Moses Felton, often urged her to forsake her husband, offering at the same time a comfortable home beneath his own roof, but she would not listen.

At length all hope was given up. Week after week would the fallen man be drunk on the floor, and not even a day of real sobriety marked his course. I doubt if such another case was known. He was too low for conviviality, for those with whom he would have associated, would not drink with him.

All alone in his office and chamber, he continued to drink, and even his very life seemed the offspring of his jug.

In early spring Moses Felton had a call to go to Ohio. Before he set out he visited his sister. He offered to take her with him; but she would not go.

'But why stay here?' urged the brother. 'You are all faded away, and disease is upon you. Why stay with such a brute?'

'Hush, Moses, speak not thus,' answered the wife, keeping back her tears. 'I will not leave him now, he will soon leave me. He cannot live much longer.'

At that moment Daniel entered the apartment. He looked like a wanderer from the tomb. He had his hat on and his jug in his hand.

'Ah, Moses, how are ye?' he gasped for he could not speak plainly.

The visitor looked at him a moment in silence. Then, as his features assumed a cold stern expression, he said, in a strongly emphasized tone:

'Daniel Bryan I have been your best friend but one. My sister is an angel, but mated with a demon. I have loved you, Daniel, as I have never loved a man before; you were noble, generous and kind: but I hate you now, for you are a devil incarnate. Look at that woman! She is my sister—she might now live in comfort, only she will not do it while you are alive; yet, when you die she will come to me.—I do pray that God will soon give her joys to my keeping. Now, Daniel, I do sincerely hope that the first intelligence that reaches me from my native place after I shall have reached my new home, may be that you are dead!'

Bryan gazed upon the speaker some moments in silence. 'Moses,' he at length said, 'you are not in earnest?'

'As true as heaven, Daniel, I am.—When I know that you are dead, I shall be happy, and not until then—so go on. Fill your jug, and—

'Stop, Moses, I can reform.'

'You cannot. It is beyond your power. You have had inducements enough to have reformed, as have the sinners of creation, and yet you are now lower than before. Go and die, sir, as soon as you can, for the moment that finds you thus, shall not find me among the mourners'

Bryan's eye flashed, and he drew himself proudly up. 'Go,' he said, with a tone of the old powerful sarcasm that had often electrified a jury. 'Go, sir, and watch the post.'

With these word Daniel Bryan hurled the jug into the fire place, and while yet a thousand pieces were flying over the floor, he strode from the house Moses bore his sister, who had fainted, to bed, and then having called in a neighbor, he hurried away, for the stage was waiting.

For months Daniel moved over the brink of the grave, but he did not die.

'One gill of brandy will save you,' said the doctor, who saw the abrupt removal of all stimulants from a system which for long years had subsisted on nothing else, was nearly sure to prove fatal.

'You can surely take a gill and not take more.'

'Aye,' gasped the poor man, 'take a gill and break my oath. Moses Felton shall never hear that brandy or rum killed me. I'll live till Moses Felton shall take back his words'

He did live! An iron will conquered the messenger Death had sent, and Daniel Bryan lived. For one month he could not even walk without help. But he had help, joyful playful help. Mary helped him.

A year passed away, and Moses Felton returned to Vermont. He entered the Court House at Burlington, and Daniel Bryan was on the floor pleading for a young man who had been indicted for forgery Felton started in surprise. Never before had Bryan looked so noble and commanding, and never before had such torrents of eloquence poured from his lips. The case was given to the jury, and the youth was acquitted. The successful counsel turned from the court room, and he met Moses Felton.

They shook hands but did not speak. When they reached a spot where others could not hear them, Bryan stopped.—'Moses,' he said, 'do you remember the words you spoke to me a year ago?'

'I do, Daniel.'

'Will you now take them back—unsay them now and forever?

'Yes, with all my heart.'

'Then I am in part repaid.'

'And what must the remainder of the payment be?' asked Moses.

'I must die an honest, unperjured man. The oath that has bound me thus far, was made for life!'

That evening Mary Bryan was one of the happiest of the happy. No allusions were made in words to that strange scene of the year before; but Moses could read in the countenances of his sister and her husband the gratitude they did not speak.

And Daniel Bryan yet lives, one of the most honored men in Vermont. Five times he sat in the State Legislature; three in the Senate, and once in the National Congress, and he is yet an ornament to society, declining all offers of public office, from the fact that his profession is more lucrative, while plenty of others want the office which he cares nothing for.

An Address to a Jury.—Gentlemen, when I consider the overwhelming importance of the case you are impannelled to try—when I reflect that, six long weeks since, your sheriff was sent into every township to summon a grand jury, who, in obedience to that mandate, have appeared—received their mileage and per diem, discharged their duties and returned to their homes—that the government has provided, at an annual salary, a judge to administer the laws, and an attorney to prosecute the pleas of the State—that the clerk, sheriff, bailiffs, and witnesses must receive their fees, mileage, per diem, and perquisites—and for what? Why, merely to find an indictment against the suffering, decrepit old man, for driving home a small specimen of unpacked pork! When I thus reflect, I'm reminded of the Christian and the Jew, who, journeying together over the great desert of Asia, were in great extremity for food. Their last morsel had been consumed, except a small piece of pork which the Gentile carried in his knapsack, and from which he cut small slices from time to time to satisfy his hunger, at the same time urging his companion to do likewise; but the Jew, true to the early precepts of his religion, refused to partake of the unclean beast. Finally, on the second day of this involuntary fast, when the ravages of hunger had nearly conquered the famished son of Israel, he called to his companion for the forbidden flesh. He seized the unctuous morsel—his keen knife glanced in the sunlight—the dainty food was already upon his lips—when suddenly his lungs refused to respire, the heavens grew black, the earth rocked to and fro, as though smote by the hand of the Omnipotent. The terrified Israelite threw the accursed meat into the dust of the earth, and, raising his eyes to heaven, cried 'Oh, what a fuss about a small piece of pork!

LINES.

In yonder grove of myrtle straying,
I saw a damsel and a child,
Lvey on its frolic brow was playing,
Her cheeks were pale, her looks were wild,

Oft as he called the dewy flowers,
His playful gambols she forbid,
And as he roved to distant bowers,
His steps controlled, his wanderings
chid.

Time passed away on airy pinion;
When lo! I met the nymph alone;
The child had fled her harsh dominion,
And hopeless she was left to roam,

To learn the damsel's name I strove,
And his who shunned her prying eye;
The truant child I found was love,
The weeping mourner, Jealousy.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE SUBSCRIBER HAVING more land than he can well manage, offers for sale his farm, formerly owned by Dr. R. W. Silvester, dec'd, situated near Hickory Ground Church, Norfolk Co., Va., and containing by estimation four hundred and seventy-two acres more or less, one hundred and fifty acres of this number is in cultivation, and the balance is set with a growth of heart pine and other timber in a sufficient quantity to last three such farms for a number of years. The arable land is enclosed with a good heart pine and juniper fence.

The buildings consist of a two story wood house with two good size rooms and a passage below, and three above, also cook house, negro quarters, barns, stables, a good well of water and fine shade trees, which makes the dwelling very pleasant in summer.

There is within one and a quarter miles of this place, a Methodist, Episcopal and Baptist Church—also a good school, and within the distance of three miles, a Methodist Protestant Church. The neighborhood around Hickory Ground is surpassed by none in this part of the county, in point of health, morality, and sociability.

For further description of his farm apply to the Rev J. D. Berryman and Mezi Wm. Wilson, both of whom live within one mile of it, or to the proprietor on Broad Creek near Norfolk.

Also for rent or lease, a low land farm in the same county, situated near Indian Creek, a branch of the North West River, which produces about four hundred barrels of corn. None need apply unless they can come well recommended as a tenant and farmer.

VALUABLE FARM AND WOODLAND FOR SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF THE WILL OF RICHARD W. Silvester, deceased, I offer for sale privately that very valuable and well known Tract of Land called SCOTLAND, situated in the lower part of Norfolk County, twenty-three miles from Norfolk City, containing Six Hundred Acres, of which Two Hundred Acres are cleared and under successful cultivation, and the remainder is Wood Land, in Oak, Poplar, Gum, &c. The soil of the whole tract is very fertile. The portion already cleared and cultivated, will yield from 1200 to 1500 barrels of corn, annually, and the Woodland, when cleared, will easily yield ten barrels of Corn to the Acre, for ten years without any manuring.—The land is also very well adapted to the growth of Wheat, of very easy drainage; lies well, in a good neighborhood, and very coveniently located for market—being within one mile and a half of Indian Creek, a navigable stream; and about equally distant from the Dismal Swamp Canal, and the new Canal from the Great Bridge now in progress of construction. By water communication, the tract is within two days of Norfolk City, for produce.

The improvements consist of a new Dwelling House containing six rooms; a new Kitchen, with a Barn and other out houses complete, and all new and in good order—attached to the Dwelling House is a capacious Cistern, holding 5000 gallons of water

An opportunity of purchasing a Farm combining so many advantages in this section, is rarely offered.

The terms of sale will be made accommodating as to time provided ample security be given.

Persons wishing to examine the land, will have every facility offered to them by the overseer, on the premises.

'YOUNG AMERICA'
CORN AND COB MILL, MANUFACTURED BY
S. MARCH, Norfolk, Va.

THE above Mill, which so far surpassed all others last season, has been improved, and made stronger and better than ever, and is now in the field carrying everything before it. It is the mill for strength, durability and swiftness.

I annex a list of premiums it has received this season, over the 'Little Giant,' 'Magic Mill,' Spar Mill, Maynard's Mill, and all others that have come into competition with it:

First premium at the N. York State Fair.
First premium at the Ohio State Fair.
First premium at the Michigan State Fair.
First premium at the N. Carolina State Fair.
First premium at the Nashville (Tenn.) Fair.
First premium at one County Fair in N. York.
First premium at ten County Fairs in Ohio.
Trial of corn and cob mills at the North Carolina State Fair, October 1856.

The following table will show the time occupied by each of the Mills on exhibition in grinding half bushel of corn and cobs:

Young America, 2 minutes and 40 seconds.
Little Giant, 4 " 55 "
Magic Mill, 6 "
Sinclair & Co's Mill, two trials, average time, 6 minutes and 58 seconds.

Advantages of the Young America or Excelsior Mill over all others: 1st, great strength and durability; 2d, simplicity, (having but one set screw to graduate the quality of grinding, which renders it so simple that it may be managed by any ordinary farm hand;) 3d, it will grind more corn, or corn and cob, in the same time, and of same quality, than any other mill in use of the same size; 4th, economy—that part of the mill which is most liable to wear, being separate from the main body of the machine, can be renewed when worn out, at the small cost of $3. Thus in the Young America or Excelsior mill, I present the best, cheapest and most durable mill ever offered to the Farmer. This mill is of large size and greater capacity than any other mill ever sold at the same price

Price, including extra plates, $50.

I am also manufacturing Cart and Wagon Wheels, Farm Wagons, Carts, Trucks, Drays, Plows, Harrows, Cultivators, Corn Shellers, and Agricultural Implements generally, and am better prepared to furnish farmers and merchants than any other house in the city.

Call and examine my stock and be convinced that it is to your interest to patronize Southern enterprize. I am unwilling to believe that all the men in Virginia and North Carolina prefer to build up the North and impoverish the South.

I have also a Foundry connected with my factory, and solicit orders for Castings generally.

He studied hard and succeeded in realizing his wishes. His child was cured, and is now alive and well. He has since administered the wonderful remedy to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the world, and he has never failed in making them completely healthy and happy. PERUVIAN BARK.

An agent so much employed in the treatment of Intermittent Fevers, is one of general interest. It is well to know that it was first introduced into Europe in 1640 but the tree that produces it was not known to naturalises before 1737. The Botanical History of the different varieties of bark is yet imperfect. The acknowledged species are—1. Cinchora Calisaya. 2. C Connaminea. 3. C. Micrantha. 4. C Scrobiculata. 5. C. Lancifolia. 6. C. Cordifolia. 7. C Bolviana, &c.—When first introduced, and for a century after it came into use, it was almost all obtained from Loxa. It was first discovered in the neighborhood of Bogota, by Mutis, in 1772 and in 1776 in the centre of Peru By subsequent discoveries, there was a great increase in the supplies of bark from the ports of Guayaquil, Payta, Lima, Arica, Buenos Ayres, Carthagena, and Saint Martha. Great difficulties were presented in discriminating the different varieties that were poured into the market, and the classification puzzled the best pharmacologists. Since the discovery of the alkaline principle, a ground of distinction hitherto unknown, has been presented, but "to form a correct and lucid system of classification, of the most difficult part of the subject is bark.' The collectors of barks in South America are called Cascarilleros. A great deal of judgment and experience is required in the collector. It is necessary to know the trees that produce good bark, and the proper season and age at which a bunch should be stripped of its bark Operations are commenced in May The tree is cut down, and the bark stripped off, or, it is decorticated while standing. The last is said to be the most wasteful method, as when a tree is cut down, shoots arising from the stump, fitting for the same purpose as branches of the tree. The bark is separated by a longitudinal incision, made by a sharp knife, and then forced off there are other means used in decorticating large trees. The bark is immediately dried in the sun, and in the process of drying becomes what is called quillon. When packed for exportation, it often happens that the same case contains several different kinds The packages are called Serons, and as found in the market, are usually covered with ox hide lined with a course cloth — The forests of Cinchona are in sparsely inhabited districts, and are not generally owned by individuals, but open to any one who engages in the collection In consequence there is often much waste, but as the forest extend over some thirty degrees of latitude it is not likely that the supply will ever be exhausted. For pharmaceutical and medicinal purposes, the barks have been classified under Pale Red, and Yellow. In this country the first have fallen into disuse the others being preferred. Should the source of quinia begins to fail the pale bark which produces cinchonia and quinidia may be more used.

It is not our intention to enter on the Chemical History. Yet it is due to Peletier and Caventon to state that the experiments of others were improved on by them, and the results applied to practical purposes of great importance. They demonstrated the alkaline character of the principle before discovered by Gomez and Lambert, and called it by the name of Cinchorine; and another alkaline principle they discovered in the yellow bark; they called Quinine. It is remarkable that the Indians, inhabiting the country where the cinchona tree grows, are ignorant of its febrifuge properties, but are greatly prejudiced against it, supposing it to be poisonous. Humboldt thinks the Jesuit Fathers sent out as missionaries to Peru, first discovered the virtues of the bark as febrifuge. It is called Cinchona, from the Countess of Cinicon, wife of the Viceroy of Peru, who received benefit from it in her own person, and introduced its use to Europe on her return to Spain, in 1640. As a tonic, the bark stands among the first, but as a febrifuge, its virtues in cases of intermittent fever amount to a specific. The bark, or its alkaloids, in different forms, is one of the most valuable articles of the whole Materia Medica.

PUNCH'S DEFENCE OF LADIES' DRESSES.

There are two sides to the Crinoline question; hear both—what may be said for, as well as what has been said against, ladies' present attire. Equity to everybody, but especially fairness to the fair.

The superfluity in length and circumference of dresses, so much complained of, is good for trade; and against excess in the milliner's bill a set off is afforded by diminution in that of the laundress Stockings may now be worn for any length of time Moreover, they may be made of the very cheapest and coarsest material; there being as far as they are concerned no longer any necessity for even so much as common neatness.

It is very true that the length and expansion of the fashionable dress gives its wearer the form of a bell-mouthed glass tumbler with a stem to it, turned upside down. No doubt a lady might be a fish from the waist downward, and stand upon a candle fin in that dress, without looking at all the worse than she looks in it now. But this is precisely its recommendation: that of serving to conceal those perfections of form, which, when they are allowed to be perceptible, attract an amount of observation which must be unpleasant to the object of it and can do the observer no good. Many men now living, are old enough to remember the time when the style of dress in consequence of being calculated to exhibit, and not to hide, personal advantages, affected young men with very frivolous and vain impressions. Dresses were then worn so short as not quite to sweep the street, and wherever you went, if there were well dressed girls there, you were continually catching a glimpse of a much too dainty foot and ankle, twinkling with a far too elegant little sandal. This trivial object continually attracted the attention of young men, who ought to have been thinking of other things. Now you never see the sort, and at the same time a lady can hold her clothes at any elevation she likes, when she simply shows a passing swell how to step out like a man in boots the same as his own—except that they are not so interesting to him.

Every husband and father ought to approve of the fashionable dresses, for they preclude his wife from attracting unnecessary attention, and if they tend slightly to hinder him from getting his daughters off his hands, they have an exactly equal tendency to prevent his sons from marrying for mere beauty, so that if they marry prudently, looking to the financial and not [illegible] figure, and time become com-friends. And sons who marry imprudently are infinitely more expensive than unmarried daughters.

Lastly, these dresses are considered very pretty by the great majority of the wearers, who think about dress, as they do about everything else, gregariously, and have no other idea of what is pretty than what is fashionable. Shrouding their charms in excess of muslin, they indulge in harmless vanity, and flatter themselves that they are creating a great sensation, whereas they create none but what is excited in the masculine mind by a bundle of clothes.

PAPER CURRENCY VS. HARD MONEY.

It is obvious enough, from the tone of public sentiment, that there is a very wholesome revival in favor of the old Democratic doctrine of a metalic currency and against banks of issue. The lessons of experience for the last twenty-years have not been altogether thrown away. Many of those who formerly scouted the idea of having a metallic currency as chimerical and stoutly upheld banks, have seen cause to change their opinion, and are now ready to co-operate with those who long ago urged that reform upon the people. Had it been adopted in 1835. what immense disasters and financial afflictions would have been saved the country. Dearly have the public paid for their folly in allowing their Legislatures the power to authorize the issue of millions of dollars of bank notes to circulate as money, which eventually became worthless trash upon their hands.—This has, however not been the greatest of its evils. The spirit of speculation which it has fostered, with the immense debts that it has entailed upon the community, and the consequent lowering of the standard of commercial morals, and the unfortunate expansions and contractions with the artificial raising and depreciation of prices, that are the necessary concomitants of th's species of currency, have been the source of disasters equally as great and universal All systems of banking having failed and proved unsound, after the trials of experience, the people are becoming convinced that the fault is not in the particular system, but in the whole theory and principle of banks of issue.

The sign indicate that it will be here from exceedingly difficult, if not impossible to procure the popular sanction to any system that proposes to issue bank rags as money It will be the mission of the Democratic party in the several States to take the lead in adopting a system that will dispense with the local banks of issue, as we have dispensed with the National Bank.—In the first place, no State Treasurer should have any connection with banks or brokers as places of deposit. They should exercise the legislative power to prohibit the circulation of any bills, so far as they have the right, of a less denomination than twenty dollars. As fast as the banks fail, let them wind up their affairs and charter no new ones to take their places. In a few years this policy will give us substantially hard money currency, and at no distant period one entirely of that character. The evil has become so alarming and great that it can no longer be tampered with. For the last twenty years the Democracy in most of the States have allowed the bank men to carry out their principles, and a pretty state of things has been the result It is time the banner of hard money was unfurled in all the States of the Union.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A TERRIBLE PUNISHMENT.

The London Spectator contains the following, expression of opinion as to what should be done with Nena Sahib in the event of his capture alive:

He should be caged as a matter for study, and after exibition in India should be brought to England, and carefully guarded to live out of the term of his natural, or unnatural life Like a monster—without sympathy. His physical health should be preserved with the utmost care, and he should live to undergo the most painful of all punishment to such a miscreant—the absence of all sympathy, and the knowledge that he was reduced to the condition of a captured beast of prey, a study for the natural philosophers of the nation he had outraged—as some compensation for forfeited humanity. He should be caged in the Tower, as the real Bengal tiger, with some of the four-footed tigers—his brethren—in cages alongside of him for comparison. We do no revenge ourselves on wild beasts; we kill them out of the way, or keep them as specimens, and we cannot afford to waste the opportunity for the punishment of a human tiger as a warning, a punishment that distance from the scene of his atrocities will magnify manifold as a deterring influence He is a gentleman, a high caste, ever susceptible of mortification by the process of degradation from the condition of humanity to that of brutality; devoid of moral feeling, probably a moral idiot, and only sensitive in pride or vanity. The spectacle of his hopeless captivity will do more to deter than would the hanging of a hundred thousand of his fellows. Mere death would be no punishment to this human brute—would have no effect on the future.

TOMB OF NAPOLEAN 1.

The tomb of Napolean 1 in the hotel des Invalidies is a magnificent structure, and cost over $1.000.000. A bronze door gives access to the crypt, over which, on a black marble, are the following words, taken from the emperor's will:—'Je desire que mescendres reposent sur les bords de la Seine, au milieu de ce peuple Francais que jiu tant aime.

Twelve colossal statues, representing as many victories, face the tomb, consisting of an immense monolith of porphyry, weighing 136.000 pounds, which was brought from Lake Onega, in Einland, at an expense of 140.000 francs. Its polish, which is exquisite indeed, has been effected by a powerful steam engine. It covers the sarcophagus, also of a single block, 12 feet long and 6 in breadth resting upon two plinths which stand on a block of green granite, brought from the Vosges. The total height is 13½ feet. In the gallery which encircles the crypt is a recess containing the sword the Emperor wore at Austerlitz, the insigna he used to wear on state occasions, the crown of gold voted by the town of Cherbourg, and the colors taken in different battles. In the vault beneath the pavement of the dome are deposited the bodies of Marshal Mortier and the other fourteen victims of Fieschi's attempt on the life of Louis Phillippe, July 28 1835.

TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 27, 1857.

NOTICE.

The Pioneer establishment having been transferred to the hands of new proprietors, it is very important that all old accounts should be settled as speedily as possible. Those, therefore, who are indebted to the office for subscription, advertising or job work are earnestly requested to come forward and make settlement without delay.

THE LAST EFFORT

Of a desperate opposition is that which is now being made to convince the country that the Democratic party is responsible for the troubles that now afflict us. With their usual belief in the credulity and gullibility of the people, the Know Nothing papers are endeavoring to create the impression that the tariff bill enacted by the Democratic party, and the independent treasury system are the causes of the present financial embarrassment In support of a proposition so preposterous and absurd, they adduce a multiplicity of words and figures calculated to mislead and deceive the more superficial observer. With a degree of earnestness hardly supposable they proceed to a demonstration of the statements put forth, and we are greatly afraid, that under the operations of the tariff of '46, the imports of manufactured goods have been so great, that our manufactories have been compelled to suspend business, thousands of industrious citizens thrown out of employment, and general distress been the natural result. Passing over the fact for a moment this same "raw head and bloody bones" has always been held up by the protectionists for the purpose of frightening honest people, let us look at the plausibility of this argument A high tariff increases the price of goods or it ceases to be a measure of profection. Protective duties therefore are ever a burden to the majority of the people benefitting be "few at the expense of the many." Trade is not permitted to find its level, but is regulated by the increase or decrease of the importation duty Agricultural productions for the want of a market will scarce pay for the cultivation whilst the manufacturers having the monopoly, control prices to suit themselves A low tariff is a measure of justice to all.—Supply and demand regulate and control trade, and though prices may advance in one branch of industry, there is a corresponding increase in all others.

The tariff of '46 say these gentlemen is partly productive of our present difficulties, because it has encouraged importations and thus run us in debt. It is true, our importations have increased, under the operations of the existing tariff; yes greatly increased. So have our population. Have our exports kept pace with the tremendous influx of foreign goods into our market? Let the figures answer. In 1840, the imports of foreign goods to this country was $107,000,000 Our exports were $132,000,000; exports over imports $25,000,000 The estimated imports of the present fiscal year is $286 000,000, being an increase of $179,000,000 over the importations of 1840. The exports, according to the same estimate, will be $437,000 000; over the exports of the same year $305,000 000—difference in favor of exports the small sum of $126,000 000 This is under the Democratic tariff of 1846 Thus it is seen that whilst our imports have steadily gone up to the figures put down, the exportations have not only kept pace but have outstripped them by a large amount The reason is obvious Under a just and equitable system of duties, trade is left to regulate itself, and though prices on manufactured goods—foreign and domestic—have advanced, the value of all agricultural products have likewise advanced and our people with less to pay comparatively, have been enabled to send a larger amount abroad

The cause of the crash that has taken place in the financial world must be sought for somewhere else. Not in a defective tariff, nor in the independent treasury.—The admirable workings of this institution are too well established to be shaken by panic mongers, or desperate politicians.—Bank speculators with government funds in 1837 are too well remembered for any set of men to cram the ridiculous idea down the throats of the people, that the revenue of the country, withheld from the grasp of these soulless corporations by the strong box of the general government, that a great financial crisis is the consequence.

In all this clamor there is something more than at first meets the eye. It is a political game to be played. The friends of a United States Bank and the advocates of a high protective tariff are the wire pullers in this new trick Although it has been generally conceded that these obnoxious measures were obsolete; admitted by all, that the defeat of Henry Clay in 1844, was an emphatic condemnation of both a Bank and Tariff, of which he was the recognized and acknowledged champion, they are to be again revived, and an attempt made to saddle them upon the country.—This is the game, and the National Intelligencer has played out the first card. Instead of endeavoring to remedy the evil by pointing out the true cause; instead of exposing the source from which the stream of ruin has flowed, and seeking to dry up the fountain, unscrupulous politicians, and corrupt demagogues have made and are making it the means to advance their own desperate fortunes But the trick is too palpable to be successful.

MUTILATING PLACARDS,

There is not a more thoughtless or mischievous practice indulged in by a certain class of our youths and and young men, than that of mutilating and defacing placards and handbills. These things form an important medium of advertising, and cost money and trouble in getting them up.—Their value cannot be estimated, and yet we find those among us upon mischief intent, for we cannot believe that malice has aught to do with it, distroying, by the ready use of the knife and otherwise the entire face of the bill, so that it is frequently impossible to decipher its meaning Words are altered, letters cut out, whole sentences missing and otherwise disfigured so that the object of the advertiser is entirely defeated. We say to those addicted to this mischievous proceeding, that it is wrong, and they are laying themselves liable to prosecution for a violation of law. We are paid for the printing of many of these bills and we think it but right that we should protest against so wanton a practice.

THE VIRGINIA SENATORIAL ELECTION

Still appears to engage the serious attention of the opposition Press. In the little misunderstanding that has grown up between some of the friends of Senator Hunter and Gov. Wise; they affect to see the prospect of an irreconcilable split in the Virginia Democracy, and, we suppose, are hugging the "delusive phantom" to their bosoms that some little good may accrue to Know Nothingism. Vain hope; fleeting shadow; "baseless fabric of a vision," it will leave not "a wreck behind." Virginia Democracy might be shattered into a thousand fragments, and Know Nothingism would be none the better for it. There is a natural repugnance to the doctrines and principles of this order among the democrats of the Old Dominion and whatever may be the differences among themselves they will be one when Sam is in the field Democrats may disagree about men, but upon principles they present an undivided front Hunter or Wise it will all be right; mark that

THE EPISCOPAL CEMETERY

If it is true that the spirits of the departed visit the earth, and if they are then subject to emotions of pleasure or pain as when clothed in mortality, with what feelings of mortification will those, whose dust repose within the silent precincts of the little "city of the dead" known as the Episcopal Cemetery, contemplate the little mounds beneath which their ashes slumber? Were they permitted to speak, we should hear them exclaim, "forgotten!" And well would the neglected appearance of this hallowed spot justify the painful conclusion: It is a desert spot where noxious weeds grow in wild luxuriance, and unsightly bushes flourish in strange contrast with the unpretending stone and sculptured marble that affection has reared to mark the resting place of departed loved ones

The beauty of these consecrated grounds is marred by the thick and tangled masses of weeds, briars and bushes, whose places should be occupied by the more fragrant emblems of love and remembrance. Cut them down, you that have friends over whom they grow, and let your care and attention beautify and adorn this, their silent home.

DEDICATION.

The new Methodist Church in this place will be dedicated on Sunday the 15th of November, the Rev. G W. Langhorne preaching the dedicatory sermon. As the Conference will assemble on the following Wednesday, it is presumed there will be present several of the eminent men, members of that body, upon that occasion.

☞ Senator Hunter, of Virginia, has written a letter to the Hon. Shelton F. Leake, defining his position towards the Administration and giving his views upon the conduct of Gov Walker The letter is a full and clear exposition of his views, and we suppose settles the Senatorial question in Virginia.

☞ A negro boy—Henry—the property of Mr. B. W. Hatch, was tried for rape before the Superior Court of Perquimans, on last week, Judge Caldwell presiding, and condemned to be hung on the 30th of November. An appeal has been taken and the case will go to the Supreme Court.

☞ The Superior Court of Pasquotank is now in session in this place, His Honor Judge Caldwell presiding.

The State docket is meagre and barren, and we know of no important case upon the civil list.

TENONING MACHINES.

Mr Parker of Va., is now in Town, and will sell county rights for Hodges' Patent Tenoning Machine. He can be found at the Leigh House for a few days only.

☞ We learn that Gen. John Gray Bynum died in Wilmington, N. C., on Saturday last. He was one of the most distinguished lawyers of the State, and a man of commanding talents.

For the Pioneer.

THE FAIR IN NORFOLK.

Mr. Editor: The all absorbing topic of our people for the nonce, is the approaching Fair which comes off on the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th proximo, and which promises to be one of the most brilliant affairs of the kind ever gotten up on the Eastern Shore. The matter is taken in hand by some of our most energetic people—some of those men who make a clean sweep when they essay the broom at all. The horse show will be particularly fine, quite a number being already in training. The list of premiums is very extensive, and the aggregate very heavy Extensive improvements have been made to the grounds, and many new features of great interest and value will be made to the coming exhibition.

But perhaps one of the most important of the especial features of the Fair will be the pains which will be taken to see that every visiter is comfortably quartered. A committee has been appointed to visit the different hotels and conduct such visiters as cannot be accommodated there to private houses. It is understood that many last year fared badly on this account, but it will not be so this year; if necessary every private house in the city will throw open its doors for the purpose, as well as in Portsmouth.

We should be glad to see every reader of the Pioneer and especially its editor, and promise all a hearty greet, fine show, and a good time generally. HASPER.

A GLANCE AT GEN. CASS, AND HON. HOWELL COBB.

A correspondent of the Journal of Commerce furnishes that Journal with the following brief but striking description of Gen Cass, and Hon. Howell Cobb to th ir offices at Washington:

Let us enter the old State department through whose halls have passed the feet of so many eminent men, from Jefferson down to Cass His room is in the second story, East end There is nothing to distinguish the locality from any other room but a series of engraved portrait of former Secretaries A messenger is ready to the Secretary, who receives all who call at a certain hour. I was cordially received by the venerable statesman, who usually comes to his office about 11 A. M., who executes much of his private business (I mean his official compositions) at his own house Few papers appear on his table much of the labor being performed by his clerk in adjacent room, with which his own communicates by a door usually open. To him the Secretary frequently dictates You may be aware that the General's hand-writing is among the most illegible on record, presenting quite a contrast to the minute distinctness of that of the late John Quincy Adams who wrote with a rapidity similar to hat with which he talks. His wig is neatly adjusted to his venerable head, thus keeping off the idea of extreme age.—There is indeed a natural activity in his appearance while engaged in conversation though it is impossible for most men above seventy to more about with the agility of youth or the vigor of middle age What deep international works the venerable statesman may be privately engaged about I, of course, did not presume to enquire — The Assistant Secretary, Mr Appleton, occupies the room on the other side of the entry.

Now let us look into the Treasury department. A few steps South brings us to that building, the greater part of which is new, and more highly ornamented. A long colonnade of lofty columns adorns in front, which looks to the East. Ascending the first flight of marble stairs, we pass through a long entry, on each side of which are rooms populous with clerks, and at the extreme end of which may be found waiting two or three messengers, one of whom announces your name to the Secretary in the adjacent room. The visitor is received with true Southern politeness by a gentleman in blue, with short stature, scarcely of middle age, with a round full healthy face, and good conditioned form to correspond. His hair lies in short curls around his pleasant head; he is instantly sociable, prompt in question and answer, and with much urbanity of speech and address mingles a good degree of decisson, all the while indicating himself to be a man of free, natural, and noble feelings, and one in whom the love of humanity is not extinguished by the severe experiences of political life. It is Howell Cobb, the Georgian, who may be considered quite an ornament to Mr. Buchanan's cabinet, of which he must be the youngest member. Of his colleagues more anon.

An Observer in Washington.

A Singular Case of Vicissitude —A few months since, the partner of a commercial house in this city, was taken to a lunatic asylum, utterly deranged, as was said, by the unparalleled pressure in business. During the years of years he then had cleared $[illegible] the asylum and his [illegible] was valued at $2,500,000, all invested in the concern of which he was a partner. The firm itself failed the other day, and is now said to be utterly insolvent. One item of the assets of the deceased's estate was a thousand shares of the Illinois Central Railroad stock, which was selling at the time of his decease at $140 a share, and which was worth, after paying up the instalments, $800,000. The same property sold yesterday at public sale at $50,000.

All this occurred within eighteen months—the prosperity, the insanity, the decease and the insolvency.—N. Y. Ev. Post

MINNESOTA ELECTION.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—In Minnesota 33 counties give Sibley democrat, 1,700 majority. There are 13 counties to hear from which will probably increase the democratic majority.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

The legislature will be largely Democratic. The Senate will consist of 21 democratic members, 13 holding over; 11 opposition, 8 holding over, and 1 doubtful. Of this body the Philadelphia Press says:

It has been many years since the Democrats have had so large a majority in the Senate of Pennsylvania as they will have at the next session. And our representatives in that body are not only numerous, but among the new as well as the old Democratic members there are a number of gentlemen of very fine talents.

The House of Representatives will be composed of 66 Democratic members and 34 opposition.

RECAPITULATION.

	Dem.	Opp.	Doubtful.
Senate,	21	11	1
House,	66	34	—
	87	45	1

Democratic majority on joint ballot, 42.

The result of the election may be called a thorough and emphatic endorsement of Mr. Buchanan's administration, his New Haven letter and the Dred Scott decision and a decided affirmation that the people of Pennsylvania do not repent the way they voted last fall. The large Democratic gain seems further to show that but for the lavish employment of the Kansas fund in the Presidential election the vote for Mr. Fremont would probably have been nearer what it now is for Wilmot, and Mr. Buchanan's majority would have been nearer what it now is for Wilmot, and Mr. Buchanan's majority would have been much larger It has been extensively believed that Pennsylvania voted for Mr. Buchanan on personal grounds, and it has often been credited by some that contributions were made and used to procure her suffrages for him The following from the Philadelphia Ledger, a neutral paper, seems to show that the enhanced Democratic success has been largely caused by the absence of such influences

The official vote for Governor in Philadelphia is as follows:—

Packer, Democrat	27 749

HOW ENGLAND EXPECTS TO RE CONQUER INDIA.

The London Times begins to appreciate the magnitude of the work which has been carved out for the English government in India, and now admits what we were severely taken to task for asserting, that the revolted provinces will have to be reconquered at greater expence than that which they were acquired

'The Bengal army is no more. A hundred thousand men are against us. That noble body of born and bred soldiers, by the aid of which we have conquered and annexed so many rich territories and warlike tribes, and which dissipated in a few days the dark cloud from the Punjad, to which our European neighbors had long pointed with expectancy, is now sternly bent on numbering England in the long list of its conquests

'If it is, however, true that the native army was the whole, regularly the whole, of our strength in India, then our empire would indeed be now in its last hour. But the world will shortly find they must give us credit for other resources and a stronger hold upon India than this one has proved to be. It is now said we have to reconquer India. That expresses the task, through only half of it, for we have to reconquer India organized, disciplined, trained, armed provisioned, fortified, emboldened by ourselves. It is a task far greater than that which offered itself to us a century ago. We can only now succeed by the extraordinary prowess of the British soldier making up for the most fearful odds, and even that would be utterly unavailing, but for another means equally the subject of invidious skepticism. We could not now march 1,500 miles right through India with a handful of men, opposed everywhere by a magnificent army of our own creation, and with every advantage of possession, unless we enjoy the confidence and good-will of the native population When we resume our neighbors, who now tell us candidly all is lost, them tell us candidly how we have recovered it? It can only be done by virtues which must then be conceded to us, with whatever reluctance. We must be a nation of soldiers; and, what is more, we must have the qualities for attaching to us those less powerful nations whom the fortune of war throws upon our hands."

INTERESTING RELICS

A correspondent of a New [illegible] travelling through [illegible] tion of some interesting [illegible] tionary times He says:

'Richmond is a [illegible] interested me greatly [illegible] went to Church Hill [illegible] which Patrick Henry stood. Give me liberty or give me death. In his days it was a cruciform building, but since then the north side of the cross has been taken down and a wider building put up in the place of it. But the part of the church in which Henry stood and where were assembled his audience, is still there, and the very spot where he stood is pointed out to the lover of old things. The pulpit, sounding board, and chancel rail are the same as they were in Henry's time. I was quite interested in the rector's history of the marble baptismal font before the pulpit. Many years before the Revolution it had been sent from England to an Episcopal church in the lower country between Richmond and the sea coast. After the revolution the church was confiscated and sold and the font became the property of a scoffing infidel, who to show his contempt, had it placed where he could salt his cattle in it From that place it got to the wood-pile, and finally some one had it put in the cellar. Originally it was so large that an infant could be immersed, but by its hard fortunes it became reduced in size. It finally fell into the hands of a gentleman who had it recut, and placed in this venerable old church in which Patrick Henry delivered his speech.

'In the State Library I had the pleasure of seeing George Mason's original draft of the Bill of Rights, written in 1776, and substantially incorporated into the Constitution of Virginia I there saw also, Washington's cane, the one which is to be presented to Mr Everett when he comes to Richmond this fall to deliver his eulogy on Washington'

We learn from the Raleigh Register of last night, that the State Bank suspended specie payments on Wednesday last.

A RETIRED PHYSICIAN

Whose sands of life have nearly run out, discovered while in the East Indies, a certain cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and General Debility. The remedy was discovered by him when his only child, a daughter, was given up to die. He had heard much of the wonderful restorative and healing qualities of preparations made from the East India Hemp, and the thought occurred to him that he might make a remedy for his child. He studied hard and succeeded in realizing his wishes. His child was cured, and is now alive and well. He has since administered the wonderful remedy to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the world, and he has never failed in making them completely healthy and happy. Wishing to do as much good as possible, he will send to such of his afflicted fellow-beings as request it, this receipt, with full and explicit directions for making it up, and successfully using it. He requires each applicant to inclose him one shilling—three cents to be returned as postage on the receipe, and the remainder to be applied to the payment of this advertisement.

Address Dr. H. JAMES

BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL.

DOCTOR JOHNSTON,

THE founder of this Celebrated Institution, offers the most certain, speedy, and only effectual remedy in the world for Gleets, Strictures, Seminal weakness, Pains in the Loins, Constitutional Debility, Impotency, Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Affections of the Kidneys, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Disease of the Head, Throat, Nose or Skin; and all those serious and melancholy Disorders arising from the destructive habits of Youth, which destroy both body and mind. These secret and solitary practices are more fatal to their victims than the song of the Syrens to the mariners Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes of anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible.

YOUNG MEN

especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellects, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with all confidence.

Marriage.

Married persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, being aware of physical weakness organic debility, deformities, &c., should immediately consult Dr. Johnston, and be restored to perfect health.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. Johnston, may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a Physician immediately cured and full vigor restored.

This disease is the penalty most frequently paid by those who have become the victims of improper indulgencies Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue.— Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of Procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms to both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged; the physical and mental powers weakened, nervous debility, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, indigestion, a wasting of the frame, cough, symptoms of consumption, &c.

DR. JOHNSTON,

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges of the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the Hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known. Many troubled with ringing in the ears and head when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, and bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended, sometimes, with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

A Certain Disease.

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame, or dread of discovery, deters him from applying to those who from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commiseration, till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings, by sending him to 'that bourne from whence no traveler returns.' To such therefore Dr. Johnston pledges himself to preserve the most inviolable secrecy, and from his extensive practice in the first Hospitals of Europe and America, he can confidently recommend a safe and speedy cure to the unfortunate victim of this horrid disease.

It is a melancholy fact, that thousands fall victims to this dreadful disease, owing to the unskillfulness of ignorant pretenders, who, by the use of that dreadful poison, mercury, ruin the constitution, and either send the unfortunate sufferer to an untimely grave, or else make the residue of his life miserable.

Take Particular Notice!

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgencies and solitary habits which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either Business, Study, Society or Marriage.

These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz:— Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, &c.

MENTALLY.—The fearful effects upon the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, Confusion of ideas, Depression of Spirits, Forebodings of Evil, Aversion of Society, Self-Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, etc., are some of the evils produced.

Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health. Losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of consumption.

Dr. Johnston's Invigorating Remedy for Organic Weakness.

By this great and important remedy, weakness of the organs are speedily cured, and full vigor restored. Thousands of the most nervous and debilitated, who had lost all hope, have been immediately relieved. All Impediments to Marriage, Physical or Mental Disqualification, Nervous Irritability, Tremblings and Weakness, or exhaustion of the most fearful kind, speedily cured by Doctor Johnston.

Young Men,

Who have injured themselves by a Certain Practice, indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school—the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, and the darling of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life, by the consequences of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons before contemplating hould reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without these, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospects hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with our own.

To Strangers.

The many thousands cured at this institution within the last 16 years, and the numerous important Surgical operations performed by Dr. J. witnessed by the Reporters of the papers, and many other persons, notices of which appeared again and again before the public, is a sufficient guarantee that the afflicted will find a skilful and honorable physician.

Dr. JOHNSTON is the only regular Physician advertising to cure private complaints.— His remedies and treatment are entirely unknown to others. Prepared from a life spent in the great hospitals of Europe and the first in this country, viz: England, France, the Blockley of Philadelphia, &c., and a more extensive practice than any other Physician in the world. His many wonderful cures and most important Surgical operations are a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted. Those who wish to be speedily and effectually relieved, should shun the numerous trifling imposters, who only ruin their health, and apply to him.

Take Notice.

There are so many ignorant and worthless Quacks advertising themselves as Physicians, ruining the health of the already afflicted, that Dr. Johnston deems it necessary to say, especially to those unacquainted with his reputation, that his credentials or diplomas always hang in his office.

No letters received unless post-paid, and containing a stamp to use on the reply.

BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL.

DOCTOR JOHNSTON,

THE founder of this Celebrated Institution, offers the most certain, speedy, and only effectual remedy in the world for Gleets, Strictures, Seminal weakness, Pains in the Loins, Constitutional Debility, Impotency, Weakness of the Back and Limbs. Affections of the Kidneys, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Disease of the Head, Throat, Nose or Skin; and all those serious and melancholy Disorders arising from the destructive habits of Youth, which destroy both body and mind. These secret and solitary practices are more fatal to their victims than the song of the Syrens to the mariners Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes of anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible.

YOUNG MEN

especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellects, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with all confidence.

Marriage.

Married persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, being aware of physical weakness, organic debility, deformities, &c., should immediately consult Dr. Johnston, and be restored to perfect health.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. Johnston, may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a Physician.

Organic Weakness

immediately cured and full vigor restored.

This disease is the penalty most frequently paid by those who have become the victims of improper indulgencies. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue.—Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of Procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms to both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged; the physical and mental powers weakened, nervous debility, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, indigestion, a wasting of the frame, cough, symptoms of consumption, &c.

MILK LEG, DREADFUL ULCER—PALPITATION, WEAKNESS—MOTHER AND DAUGHTER CURED—HAMPTON'S TINCTURE TRIUMPHANT!

HUNDREDS OF OUR OWN CITIZENS—Rich, the Poor, everywhere, bear the same TESTIMONY.

Read the following certificate from a lady, endorsed by Postmaster E. P. Cooper:

Capon Bridge, Hampshire county, Va., March 1, 1854.

Mr. E. P. Cooper.—Dear Sir: According to your request, and my own desire to benefit the afflicted, I hereby certify the great benefit I received from the use of HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE.

I was taken with a violent palpitation, or rather fluttering of the heart, which lasted several days; it seemed as though my heart almost forgotten its office. The family became alarmed and procured a bottle of this medicine, and before I had taken near one bottle of this valuable medicine, and before I had taken near one bottle of this TINCTURE HAMPTON'S I was entirely relieved.

This is the third instance of relief in my family by the use of this valuable medicine. Two or three years ago, I was laid up with an affection of my ankle, from the effect of what is usually called a milk leg. I had lost all my appetite; and the sore which was some inches up and down, and half-way around the ankle, rejected every effort to heal it, until I procured HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE, one bottle of which restored my health and healed my ankle, and I am free from it more than the last thirty years.

Again, one of my daughters was suffering from severe disentery, and when she would sit up her feet commenced swelling and increased every day, to be very painful. [illegible] a bottle of Hampton's Tincture; the pain was assuaged, the swellings subsided and health returned—we kept her legs bandaged with a piece of woollen until her strength returned.

I have been thus particular, that others under similar circumstances, might be able to avail themselves of this remedy.

Yours with respect

I do hereby certify that I am personally acquainted with Mrs. Edwards, and can commend the above statement to be true.

E. P. COOPER, Postmaster, Capon Bridge, Hampshire co.

☞ Delicate ladies and children should give it a trial.

MR. J. B. BOUSH.—Sir, While I am opposed to Patent Medicines, candor compels me to state that I have great confidence in the virtues of HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE. So far as my experience extends therefore, I take pleasure in recommending it to the afflicted, as a safe and efficient remedy.

I am respectfully yours,
VERNON ESKRIDGE,
Chaplain.
